Science to Find Way to Ward Off Death.

Man will live forever on earth without fear of death, except by accident, if modern science is successful in experiments now taking shape in the great scientific laboratories, according to Dr. Albert P. Mathews, professor of physiological chemistry at the University of Chicago. The immortality of the body depends simply upon the discovery of a diet which will keep intact the fundamental principles of the human cell, and it is probable that this will be found, Mr. Mathews believes.

Professor Mathews, who has been conducting remarkable experiments in regard to the artificial formation of life and the restoration of life by artificial means, announced his views in an article on "What is Death?" His view is that death is caused primarily by the cessation of respiration, which may be kept indefinitely if the proper relation between food and the fundamental cell substance is found.

Dr. Mathews has discovered that the breathing process causes the same reaction as that produced by alcohol or the substance "benzophenone" in the sunlight. The alcohol in this experiment decomposes, and the substances formed are sugar, aminoacids, proteins, and other components of the human cell.

The probability of a correct diet keeping up this "life reaction" is commented upon by Dr. Mathews as follows:

"Now, this reaction under perfect conditions should continue indefinitely, and so render the human body immortal. Unfortunately, however, it does not continue. It is the keen desire of all to find out why it does not continue and to change conditions so that it will continue as long as possible.

The chief cause of its cessation may be divided into obviously extrinsic and apparently intrinsic causes. The obvious external causes are the ordinary causes of death—accidents, assaults and taking of poison, the action of parasites and disease germs—these causes of death are relatively easily removed. They will be removed for the most part in the near future. These will remain apparently intrinsic causes of death, improper feeding and incomplete excretion."

The Value of Terpentine for Household Pests.

I wish every housekeeper could fully realize the value of terpentine, and she would never be without a supply of it. The odor is clean and wholesome, and I know from experience that it is a sure protection against moths. Sprinkle a little of the terpentine in the bottom of trunks and drawers, and cover with a fresh newspaper. Also, saturate pieces of soft cloth, and place in the corners, away from the place in the corners, away from the clothes. In midsummer I often open them and tuck in a new supply without removing the articles. Keep a bottle of terpentine in the wardrobe or closet, and occasionally sprinkle a few drops around. It is good for fur or feathers or anything in which these pests live.

Another troublesome pest can be easily disposed of, and that is ants. Take tartar emetic and a little sugar, and mix with water and set the dish where they come. They will eat of this, get sick and leave in droves, and generally will not appear again during the season. Exchange.

What's the secret of happy, vigorous health? Simply keeping the bowels, the stomach, the liver and kidneys strong and active. Burdock Blood Bitters does it. 51-4

Beecher's Repartee.

Mr. Beecher's quickness at repartee, of which Americans knew well, was entirely equal to Irish demands upon it. One day in Ireland, after he had made an address to a Sunday-school, a bewitching young collier came up to where he stood chatting and said:

"Mr. Beecher, you have won my heart."

"Well," replied the great man quickly with a burst of a smile, "you can't get along without a heart so suppose you take mine?"

BEECHER AND INGERSOLL.

Mr. Beecher and Col. Bob Ingersoll were on the platform together at a public meeting and Beecher went over and shook hands heartily with the great agnostic, though he knew that the act would bring a storm of criticism from narrow gauge souls. Then Ingersoll brought up one of his daughters and introduced her, saying:

"Mr. Beecher, here is a girl who never read the Bible." Bob delighted in shocking ministers, but he missed his fun that time, for Beecher quickly replied:

"If all heathen were so charming I am sure we would all become missionaries."

BEECHER IN THE SOUTH.

After the war Beecher made a lecture tour of the South and appeared at Mozart Hall, Richmond, with an address entitled, "The North and the South." He was rather doubtful as to the reception he would have, but he knew what he wanted and was determined to have it. No applause welcomed him as he appeared on the platform, but a few hoots were heard in the gallery. In the better rows of seats were some grim ex-Confederates. Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, Gen. Ross, ex-Gov. Smith, Gov. Cameron and others. Beecher fixed his eye directly on Lee and said (I quote a newspaper report of the incident):

"I have seen picture of Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, sir, and I assume you are the man. Am I right?" The General slightly taken back by this direct address, nodded stiffly, while the audience bent forward, breathless with curiosity as to what was going to follow.

"Then," said Mr. Beecher, his face lighting up, "I want to offer you the right hand, which, in our own way fought against you and your a year ago, but which I would now willingly sacrifice to make the sunny South prosperous and happy. Will you take it, General?" There was a moment's hesitation, a moment of deathlike stillness in the hall, and then Fitzhugh Lee was on his feet, his hand was extended across the rooftops and was quickly met by the warm grasp of the preacher. At first there was a murmur, half of surprise and half of doubtfulness, from the audience; then there was a hesitating clapping of hands, and before Beecher had unlashed the hand of Robert E. Lee's nephew there were cheers such as were never before heard in old Mozart, though it had been the scene of many a war and political meeting. But this was only the beginning of the enthusiasm. When the noise had subsided Mr. Beecher continued:

"When I go back home I shall proudly tell that I have grasped the hand of the nephew of the great Southern Chieftain; I shall tell my people that I went to the Confederate capital with a heart full of love for the people whom my principles once obliged me to oppose and who can forgive as well as they can fight."

Five minutes of applause followed and then Mr. Beecher, having gained the hearts of his audience, began his lecture and was applauded to the echo. That night he entered his carriage and drove to his hotel amid shouts such as have never greeted a Northern man in Richmond since the war.

WIT OF INGERSOLL.

Ingersoll himself was as quick as the quickest at repartee. One day a malignant believer in an awful time for the wicked after death asked him:

"Are you trying to abolish hell?"

"Yes," said Ingersoll.

"Well, you can't do it."

"You'll be sorry if I don't," the Colonel replied.

Agnostic though he was, Ingersoll is frequently quoted by preachers, for in one respect he was much like the rest of them—he was much given of urging men to right living, not through any fear of eternal punishment, but because goodness is its own excuse for being. No pastor was ever more severe in his condemnation of anything mean and wicked in human life. In his lighter moments he was one of the merriest companions that any one could wish to meet.

Poultry Notes.

If hens must be kept in, the poultry arrangements should be made for the admission of plenty of air; otherwise the poor birds will have oppressively hot bedrooms these warm nights.

It will pay to keep the trim little pullets growing, and if you want winter eggs don't let present prices tempt you to sell the earliest pullets along with the cockerels.

It is a pretty good plan where chickens thieve are not trouble some to shut up the poultry house during the hot months and compel the hens to roost outside. In thick leaved trees or under an open shed they will have protection from rains, be cooler and trouble less with lice. When the cool nights come they will return to the houses more vigorous for their open air treatment.

Eggs are not very profitable at present prices. It is better, we think, to sell fewer eggs and allow a number of hens to raise summer broods of chicks. While the chicks are being raised the hens are resting from egg production and in the autumn when eggs are scarce and high they will be ready to lay again. While prices are low is the time to give the hens a needed rest; then the moulting period will have little effect on them.

When the poultry runs have been used for a long time and the earth becomes saturated with droppings and disease germs it can be disinfected and purified by saturating it with a 5 per cent solution of carbolic acid and applying a liberal coating of lime. After a few days plow or spade it up and level it.

It has been found that when trees are inclosed on small areas, in plum or peach orchards, they serve to protect the trees in a large degree from insects. Those who have been most successful do not give the fowls a large range, but rather plant the trees in the poultry yard, thereby using them to provide shade for the fowls in summer.

Turkeys are sure profit producers on the large farm where they can have a wide range. In their extensive wanderings at this season they pick up the greater part of their entire living. The worst drawback with these fowls is the habit of roosting away from home, and this can be avoided by regular feeding at night. When the young turkeys find out they are sure of their supper they are very apt to "show up." But if the owner gets too busy or careless to have their feed ready and provide drinking water he is sure to have trouble in this respect.

Japan's Patch-Work Farms.

Why, the whole country looks like a piece of crazy patch-work in shape as fantastic as ever our grandmothers cut from old scraps of silk and velvet to piece together as a "cat-stitch" done in multi-colored doses. And this is why, perhaps, that in the wheat-thrashing and rice-planting season the country looks so lively, crowded as it is with laborers, a whole family on each little patch of ground bobbing about under their huge mushroom shaped hats. And they are happy, these odd little folks, although the best of them make hardly more than $50 to $75 a year, upon which families must be reared and educated. Riding in a jinrikisha along the narrow roads between the rice fields, one passes group after group, knee deep in the unexpectedly filthy mud, laughing and singing—or making strange, unusual sounds which they call singing—and playing about their work like a lot of happy children. The process of rice raising is not the simplest thing in the world; and, considering the fact that there are practically no farm animals in Japan, and only the most primitive of agricultural implements, with which half the farm land has been literally made in terrace beds upon the mountain slopes, the success attained by the people is remarkable.—Eleanor Franklin, in Leslie's Weekly.

Young trees need to be mulched for three or four seasons after planting. The first two or three seasons crops may be grown between the rows. But it is better if the planter can afford to give them the entire ground the first and second season. Corn should not be grown between the small trees. Potatoes, cowpeas or soy beans are less liable to injure the trees than corn.

Fruit is the newest cure for alcoholism. Writing in a popular magazine, Paul Arr says of fruit that it is the one cure for the drinking habit. Eating fruit "will cure the worst case of inebriety that ever afflicted a person," he says.

"No person ever saw a man or woman who liked fruit and who had an appetite for drink. No person ever saw a man or woman with an appetite for drink. The two tastes are at deadly enmity with each other and there is no room for both of them in the same human constitution. One will certainly destroy the other.

Lime acts upon and greatly aids the decomposition of organic matter in the soil. It is used to neutralize the organic acids contained in what are called "soil soils." It also acts upon the inorganic, or mineral constituents of the soil, and aids in converting them into forms in which they can be taken up by the plants, especially in liberating potash from its combination.

In an experiment with corn a farmer put three hogs in separate pens. One ate 3-1/2 bushels of corn on the ear in nine days, and gained 19 pounds. The second ate, in the same time 1-3/4 bushels of corn, earily ground, and gained 19 pounds. The third consumed, in the same time, one bushel of boiled meal, and gained 22 pounds.

Resigns.

As a result of the charges made by Mr. Richard Cheatham, of Atlanta, Secretary of the Southern Cotton Association, that information, as to the cotton crop was given out to speculators in advance of the regular report issued by the Department, an investigator was made by Secretary Wilson, which now develops that Mr. Cheatham's charge was well founded. It was developed that one Edwin S. Holmes, an assistant in the office of Statistician Hyde, has been regularly selling the information to brokers in New York and the figures thus given them in advance of their publication were used to manipulate the market.

Mr. Holmes has been dismissed from the Government service, and will be prosecuted if it is found there is any law to warrant such prosecution. It is not claimed that Statistician Hyde is guilty of any misconduct or dishonesty, but he is blamed for not discovering the leak in his department.

Secretary Wilson will in future assume personal responsibility for the safe-guarding of crop statistics until they are given out for publication.

Mr. Hyde, because of some refection, has resigned.

Amazing.

It is amazing how many mothers will give their children medicines containing violent and dangerous drugs for bowel and stomach disorders, when better results, with absolute safety, can be obtained by the use of a pure, pleasant, harmless remedy like Dr. Caldwell's (laxative) Syrup Pepsin. Try it once. Sold by W. S. Lloyd at 50c and $1.00. Money back if it fails.

Too Busy to be kind.

"I sometimes think we women nowadays are in danger of being too busy to be really useful," said an old lady thoughtfully. "We hear so much about making every minute count, and always having some work or course of study for spare hours and having our activities all systematized, that there is no place left for small, wayside kindnesses. We go to see the sick neighbor, and relieve the poor neighbor, but for the common everyday neighbor, who has not fallen by the way, so far as we can see, we have a minute to spare. But everybody that needs a cup of cold water isn't calling the fact out to the world, and there are a great many little pauses by the way which are no waste of time. The old-fashioned exchange of garden news over the fence and friendly chats about domestic matters helped to brighten weary days, and brought more cheer than many a sermon. We ought not to be too busy to inquire for the girl away at school or to be interested in the letter from the boy at sea. It is a comfort to the mother's lonely heart to feel that some one else cares for that which means so much to her. Especially we ought not to be too busy to give and receive kindnesses in our own home." May no one be able to say of us that we are too busy to be kind!—The Young Woman.

Splitting Headache

Can be often relieved by a nerve sedative, but the scientific way of treating a headache is to go right down to the real cause, or root of the trouble and cure it with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is the only perfect cure for headache, dizziness, constipation, and is free from the dangerous after-effects, which so frequently follow the use of headache powders. Try it. Sold by W. S. Lloyd at 50c and $1.00. Money back if it fails. 51-1

CURE FOR HAY FEVER

W. S. Lloyd Says Hyomei Will Give Relief—Sold Under Guarantee.

W. S. Lloyd desires us to announce that when Hyomei is used as a preventive, or a cure, there will be no hay fever. He advises daily treatment with Hyomei for two or three weeks before the usual time for the annual appearance of hay fever. If this is done at the attack will be prevented. However, if the preventive treatment is not started soon enough, and the disease makes its appearance, use Hyomei six or seven times daily, and relief will be given at once.

There is no stomach doing when Hyomei is used. Breathed through the neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, its medicated air reaches the minutest air cells, killing all germs and soothing and healing the irritated mucous membrane.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1, extra bottles 50 cents. It is the only treatment for hay fever sold by W. S. Lloyd under a guarantee to refund the money if it does not give satisfaction.

Baby Born on Trolley Car.

Mrs. Gussie Hollender, aged 24, of 105½ Eighth street, Manhattan, set out for an outing in Queen's county. On a car of the Grand street and Newtown line she became ill and several women in the car went to her aid, says the New York Sun. At their request the conductor put the other passengers off the car, the blinds were drawn and the car was sidetracked. A hurry call for an ambulance was sent to the Eastern District Hospital, but before the ambulance arrived a large crowd had gathered and four policemen were necessary to handle it.

When Dr. Cohen appeared Mrs. Hollender gave birth to a bouncing baby boy. At the request of the woman he removed her and child to her home in the ambulance.

Farmer Daugherty's Remarkable Crop of Alfalfa.

Mr. R. P. Daugherty, of the Cedar Creek section, was in town one day last week and informed the News of a most remarkable crop of hay which he had raised this year on his farm near Cowley, this county. Last spring he put out an eight acre crop of alfalfa which he also sowed in oats as a nursing crop. About June 5, when the oats were just fixing the head, or as the farmers say, were in the boot, Mr. Daugherty mowed the mixed oats and alfalfa, reaping a very fine yield. He then went on a week's visit to friends in Larue county and on his return found, much to his surprise, that the crop had grown so rapidly he could scarcely tell that it had ever been cut. On July 3, in about one month from the first cutting, he removed, re-seeding another large field of alfalfa and oats in full head. To mend the latter this same field had been in millet last year, and a good deal of the old millet was turned under in the April breaking so that at the second cutting there appeared also about half a crop of volunteer millet. Mr. Daugherty expects to reap another fine yield of alfalfa off this same piece about the middle of August.

For Sale.—Two fine farms; 144 acres good land at $40 an acre; 345 acres in Logan county, finely improved and good, 10 miles from county seat, cheap, $3,500. Other places cheap. I handle only bargains. W. H. BLAKLEY, 42 ft. Bowling Green, Ky.

We are authorized to announce JAMES L. ROBERTSON is a candidate for Jailer of Montgomery County, subject to the action of the B. I. P. convention party.

WHOSE SON NEXT?

So events in our town since Friday noon show the terrible havoc wrought by the devil as he wings men and women on to destruction. There are influences or agencies of our own making which hasten this destructive work. Does it not seem strange that sensible people will thoughtfully license or sanction the saloon, the brothel and the gambling house, where sin is perfected in its damnation? There is a difference between toleration and sanction. Think of it! Men in control of city, county and State councils selling for so many dollars to permit to debauch and damn our sons and daughters! There may be some excuse for unbelievers and infidels so acting, but how can any man, who has named the name of Christ, shut his eyes to the great moral principle involved, trample underfoot the sacredness of human character and life, forget or violate the laws of God, mar his own manhood and consider not the weak brother? To the Christian manhood are we to look for the righting of these wrongs, the dissipation of that stupor or darkness which rests like a great pall over our city, county and State. If the light that is in us is darkness, how great is that darkness! O, Christian fathers and mothers, save yourselves and your children from impending doom. Say not there is safety and peace: while gambling dens, saloons and brothels exist in our town by permit or toleration. Whose son will next fall? Whose daughter will next walk in the way of death? Will it be yours?

WAKKE UP.

Is gambling, drunkenness and impurity in woman more heinous, more pitiable than in man? Sire is no greater a sinner than we when a community rightly judges the moral quality of an act, the fallen than will be pitied as much as the fallen woman, and he will be as much a social leper—though he be boasted as the lord of creation. Again it is to be wondered at that young men are licentious and drunken, when fathers and mothers permit these known-to-be viles ones to come to see their daughters—the nicest young ladies in the town? Will soon change the color of snow? Will a skunk sweeten attar of roses? Will pitch add lustre to the diamond? Oh, you silly or sinful parents, wake up.

THIRTY-FIVE THE MINUM.

Ex-Speaker Bowles is to be commended in giving his views, which are backed by personal observation on this most important subject. The minimum age for eligibility to the Legislature or State Senate should be thirty-five years. At this age men are mature, with established characters, and if good the people will have found it out, and if bad there should be no place for such in either of these assemblies, for a man of questionable character is not worthy the confidence of the people, and a vice is to be sought for the sake of rewards if not nothing more.

A Woman's Club of Louisville has recently been debating the question "How to keep husbands at home at night." We would suggest locking them out both night and day.

The heavy continuous rains are giving the weeds a fine start in the cornfields, but four weeks more of favorable weather will make the largest corn yield per acre Kentucky has enjoyed for many years.

Tax payers are mostly interested in knowing what becomes of the money paid into their State, county or municipal treasuries.

Will young men and women not learn from the thoughtlessness, unthoughts and sins of others?

Man is the noblest work of God, yet fearful is the wreck wrought in sin. There are evidences round about us.

Has reason fled to brutish beasts, and only man is vile?

Last year Bourbon farmers realized forty cents per bushel for 800,000 bushels of grass seed. This year only 250,000 bushels was gathered and is selling at seventy-five cents per bushel.

The crop conditions—especially corn—in central Kentucky are encouraging.

R. T. Smith, of Texas, sold to Horace Williams and Eliza Williams a lot in Smithville for $120. Lucy Ann Steele has sold her interest in a tract of land on the waters of Hinkston creek to Cordelia E. Steele.

Laura Rogers, as Executrix of Sarah Rogers' estate, has sold to W. H. Knox two lots, designated as lots Nos. 100 and 101 on the plat of Mattie Lee City for $750.

William Alexander has sold to his brother, Roy Alexander, his interest in the house and lot of his mother, the late Mrs. W. H. Moore, on corner of Clay and Elm Streets for $100.

On Friday afternoon after 3 o'clock Luttrell Fassett, aged 32, and unmarried, son of J. W. Fas-

It is said that Joe Fay, an unscrupulous, reputation, makes his headquarters there, and was there when Fassett called. He and Fassett are neighbors so the latter says. Fassett was unarmed. A verbal difficulty arose. Fay pulled his pistol and fired. The first shot passed through the clothing. The second entered Fassett's body below the heart and passed out of back a little lower. Fassett says he was told Fay before second shot was fired that he was unarmed. Fassett was taken to National Hotel and later to the home of Mrs. M. S. Lane, where he has been since. His condition has been serious. Fay was arrested and placed in county jail by Chief of Police Conroy and policeman Smith. He will be brought out this morning for examining trial.

In a lonely played, but interesting game Mt. Sterling was defeated by Carlisle by the score of 5 to 3 last Tuesday. With the score 3 to 2 in their favor, the locals went high in the air, making enough errors to allow Carlisle to clinch the game. Brown and Still both pitched brilliant ball.

Mr. Sterling won the second game. Score 15 to 5. Yarnall's curves were driven to all parts of the lot. The feature of the game was the battling of the entire team, especially the battling of Will Campion, who made two three baggers and a single, besides robbing out of the hit by the umpire. Brown on third played beautiful game, while George Campion pitched in good form, keeping the Carlisle sputters guessing all the time.

On Thursday Mt. Sterling was defeated on the home grounds by Versailles in a listless game. Score 7 to 3.

On Monday the locals were again defeated by the Louisville Bankers. Score 5 to 1. George Campion pitched good ball with the exception of the fifth inning when he lost control, giving the base on balls and hitting three batters. In this inning Mt. Sterling bunched her errors to poor advantage.

Total offerings in Louisville for week ending July 21 were 4525 boxes. Of this number 1259 were new, 1721 old, 1281 3061 new dark and 100 old dark.

Quality of the Burley was fairly good, color continues very scarce, especially strictly bright grades, condition good. The market for bright and desirable color grades was firm, for all other grades the market was irregular. Red tips, common and medium red leaf were shade lower. Common and medium leaf were firm, good and fine leaf were unchanged.

GUARD AGAINST GERMS

Keep Well by Strengthening the Stomach in Summer With Mi-o-na.

Everyone with weak digestion should use Mi-o-na at this season and so strengthen the stomach that disease germs can have no effect whatever. This remarkable remedy puts the whole digestive system in healthy, clean and sweet state that fermentation of the food cannot exist, that any disease which may enter the stomach will be destroyed, and food will be so readily assimilated that a rapid and healthy increase in flesh will result.

Nervousness and sleeplessness come more often from a weak stomach than from any other cause; headache, back-ache, and rheumatic pains are directly caused by an acid condition of the stomach. Mi-o-na corrects all this, prevents the formation of acids, and nervousness, kidney trouble, or rheumatism, is quickly cured.

Ask W. S. Lloyd to show you the guarantee under which he sells Mi-o-na. Price 60 cents. It costs nothing unless it cures.

How One Man Succeeds.

During the last of June I sold a couple of dozen old hens, and later about the first of August, I sold again just before moulting.

The idea of these two sales is to reduce numbers and preserve egg-laying profit. I cull in these two sales and thus enhance the flock. I carry something over 100 hens, Barred Rock and Single Comb Leghorn.

Shade is an important item in hot weather. I plant plum, cherry, peach and pear in wired-in lots for shade. Water is given fresh some three times per day during extreme heat. I aim to keep down poisonous weeds and to have shelter from rain and storm.

Sometimes, I add venetian red, procured at stores, five or six table-spoons in half gallon drinking vessel as a tonic.

I give sweet and humerous almost daily. Milk keeps digestion and adds to the health of the flock. They have dust bathes under the coal-house, smoke-house, and granary and they use them.

About the 1st of July I wash the coop, cleaning thoroughly. I remove perches of willow and supply new ones, close the coop and burn sulphur to destroy lice, burn lice infested nests, shut the hens out of the coops as a roosting place.

The hens go to the trees, barn and wagon shed to roost in hot weather.

Before the severe heat comes on I keep the window open in coop at night that are wired over for protection, for ventilation and have a screen door made of light material that adds coolness and comfort.

I feed sulphur in butter-milk to aid feather production during the moulting. I also feed lightly some prepared poultry specific now and then and have added a little tincture of iron to their drinking water. Should disease appear double your care and efforts.

I aim to feed them corn, wheat, oats and corn bran, as I think they need.

I keep a load of gravel in the barn-yard for them and keep oyster shells where they can get it for grit. In this way I've brought through the old stock, aiming only to keep none over two or three years of age, a number of seasons with very little loss.—R. H. Callahan, in Successful Farming Journal.

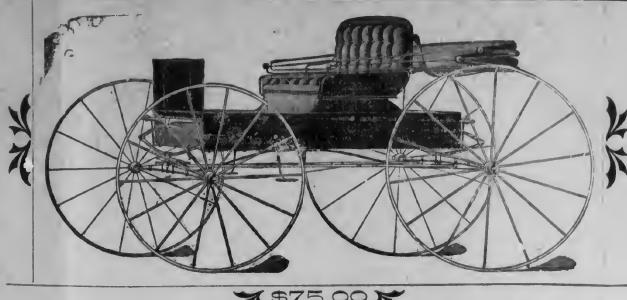

A little life may be sacrificed to an hour's delay. Cholera infantum, dysentery, diarrhea comes suddenly. Only safe plan is to have Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry on hand. 51-4t.

WELLS.

—The life work and mission of Joseph C. Wells have ended, and his spirit has gone to its creator. He leaves, to kindred and friends, the heritage of a life of faith in the Christ, gentle and true, diligent and honourable in business, attentive to Christian duty. He was born in this county, Dec., 1813.

On Saturday after supper the nurse stepped into the dining room to take the dishes. Mr. Wells is getting up feebly and broken in right hip. He died on Sunday evening at 9:30 o'clock, July, 23, 1905, at the country home of his nephew (by marriage) J. Gano Johnson, with whom he has lived for about seven years. With the exception of a few years in business in Maysville during the war, his life has been spent in this county and town. Before and since the war he was a merchant here—in later years with W. W. Thompson and J. D. Hazel.

The only persons present were Mr. Jack Graves and Miss Minnie Redmond, and the Misses Nell and Ruth Wyatt, twin sisters of the bride. The groom is the District Agent of the Citizen's Life Insurance Company, of Louisville, and recently came to our city.
